

I feel the move to adopt a federal law to control "telemarketing calls" may have detrimental effects on my privacy. The state of Indiana has in place a law which controls these calls already and has reduced the number of calls we receive by easily 95% since its adoption. Previous to that we were bothered by as many as 6 - 8 calls per day for various services. Now we receive fewer than 2 - 3 per month. From my understanding your proposed bill would relax these standards and generate a greater number of calls. Please reconsider this action and allow the States to adopt their own laws regarding this matter. Thank you for your consideration.
